

Single Equality Scheme

Approved by SMT (P) - 22nd February 2011

2011-2014

1 Introduction

- 1.1 The Board of the Corporation, College Management and recognised trade unions at Hugh Baird College are fully committed to delivering equality of opportunity for all its students and staff, to eliminate all forms of illegal discrimination as well as all forms of harassment and victimisation.
- 1.2 This Single Equality Scheme incorporates all of the previous work and incorporates the College policies and procedures in respect of the protected characteristics.
- 1.3 The scheme provides guidance on how the College will meet its equality duty; how policies, procedures and plans will be monitored for adverse impact; how the overall practice and outcomes of the College will be monitored and how action will be planned and delivered to address any concerns that are identified.

2 Meeting the equality duties

- 2.1 This scheme is designed to ensure that the College meets its legal duties in relation to the following protected characteristics:
 - race;
 - gender (and Transgender identity), gender re-assignment/being a transsexual person;
 - disability;
 - religion or belief;
 - age;
 - sex;
 - sexuality, sexual orientation (lesbian, gay, bisexual or heterosexual);
 - pregnancy and maternity.
- 2.2 This scheme will operate within the framework of Equality and Diversity legislation as outlined in The Equality Act 2010. The Act will replace nine existing pieces of legislation thus bringing all existing legislation into one single Act.
- 2.3 In practice this means:
 - Meeting the common duties in relation to students, staff and members of the public from all of the above categories as follows: eliminate unlawful discrimination, harassment and victimisation and other conduct prohibited by the act;
 - advance equality of opportunity between people who share a protected characteristic and those who do not;

- foster good relations between people who share a protected characteristic and those who do not.
- 2.4 The Equality Act 2010 expressly prohibits further and higher education institutions from discriminating against, harassing or victimising:
- prospective students (in relation to admissions arrangements);
 - students at the institution (including those absent or temporarily excluded);
 - in some limited circumstances former students.

3 Discrimination and harassment

3.1 Application

3.1.1 Discrimination and harassment can be considered as any hostile or offensive act or expression including persistent and unwelcome comments, looks, jokes, suggestions or physical contact. It can be based on a person's race, gender, gender identity, disability, age, religion or sexuality or assumptions about any of these things and has the affect of threatening a person's job security or create a stressful or intimidating working environment.

3.1.2 Harassment of staff or students on grounds of race, sexuality, disability, age, religion and gender may include:

- physical abuse and making threats against a person;
- insults, derogatory name-calling and offensive jokes;
- offensive comments in the course of class discussions;
- offensive graffiti or written insults;
- offensive emails or text messages;
- provocative behaviour such as wearing offensive badges or insignia;
- bringing offensive materials such as leaflets or magazines into College;
- any of the above behaviour based on assumptions about a person's identity.

3.1.3 Any member of staff or student, whatever their background may experience harassment. However, it can often be difficult for people to make complaints about harassment and management must take care to ensure that such complaints are not ridiculed or trivialised.

3.1.4 Harassment is not a trivial matter and can lead to emotional stress and physical illness and College Managers must ensure that the College fulfils its legal obligations not to tolerate discrimination and to take the health and safety of its staff seriously.

3.1.5 It is essential that all such incidents are dealt with effectively. An understanding of the cause or motive for the behaviour might inform how that action is dealt with and judgements will have to be made as to the seriousness of the incident. Nevertheless such behaviour must not be ignored.

3.1.6 Overt harassment and discrimination, deliberate in intent, and obvious in its expression is relatively easy to identify. However, there may be many situations where it will be very difficult to distinguish between incidents which are accidental, thoughtless, or the product of familiarity. The individual may feel that he or she will not be taken seriously or will be blamed or that people will not understand, there may be no other witnesses to incidents of this form of harassment, there may also be a time lapse between any incidents and the complaint.

3.1.7 Where students are involved, knowledge of those students and the precise context of the situation will have a major bearing on whether the relevant procedures are invoked, and with what intentions. However, in all cases, the response should be to educate and inform, even if it is clear that no further action is necessary.

EQUALITY IMPACT ASSESSMENT

What is it?

An Equality Impact Assessment is simply a process that enables us to check out how an existing function or policy or a new function or policy affects groups of people covered by equalities legislation and our Equality and Diversity strategy. It allows us to look at evidence or consult as to whether the function or policy is discriminating (actual or perceived to be) against a particular group of people. We can then change the function or policy if it is having an adverse effect on some groups.

Mapping functions and policies

Clearly, some functions and policies have a greater impact on specific groups than others for example; a student car parking policy is likely to have a greater impact on a student with a mobility disability than those without a disability.

The first stage is to conduct a mapping exercise of all functions and policies to determine their relevance to gender, race and disability equality. The aim of the preliminary mapping is to determine whether the particular function or policy is of High, Medium or Low relevance.

Wherever possible learners need to be involved in determining priorities in terms of impact assessments for example, through the current Learners' with Disabilities forum.

For each policy/function the following information needs to be gathered:

- What is the purpose of the policy/function
- Who are the people affected by the policy/function
- Is there any evidence that specific groups have different needs in relation to the policy/function? Think about barriers which may exist.
- Does this policy/function contribute to or hinder equality?

Assessing individual policies and functions

- Determine level of relevance to equality strand
- Check existing evidence/data
- Assess impact
- Find ways of mitigating any adverse impact
- Consult appropriately on the final policy/function

Reporting and Publishing Findings

It is a legal duty to report annually on the progress of all three equality strands. This will take the form of a brief report published to the College Website and thus accessible to members of the public and all stakeholders.
